

We recently purchased a new property in Launiupoko, Maui built by Brown Development. This was a challenging situation for us as we were able to be on-site only once during construction. However, Brown Development was exceedingly professional and courteous throughout, and we were in constant communication.

I remember reading on their website that Brown's goal is to "consistently exceed customer expectations". At the time I thought that would be pretty difficult, because we have pretty high expectations! But exceed them they did and we couldn't be happier with the result. Brown went the extra mile on every detail that I can recall, and when challenges of project scope - late breaking change requirements, change orders and costs, or any other issue came up, I remember Greg's comment was always "we want you to be happy with your new home". That refrain, and our constantly increasing confidence in Brown's pride of workmanship, intrinsic quality expectations, and fairness of cost are the things we came to count on throughout the process.

I would highly recommend Brown Development to build your new dream home, and I'm confident it will turn out just as dreamy as ours has.
